Contributors...

I have studied under many teachers on this topic and much of this material is what I have pieced together from a variety of sources. I will be giving credit as I go along, and encouraging you to study more from the teachers that you like. I want to tell you exactly where I have found my information so you can study further on your own if you like.

Sacred Teachings...

Seeing Money as Sacred can only happen when you realize one of the Sacred Goddess truths that we may have forgotten:

*Wealth is Spiritual
It is Invisible, Infinite and Within You*

This is not a journey to add anything to us...it is not a journey about "getting rich." Because you can't get what you have already got. All the riches of the Universe are already within you. That is not merely metaphorical. That is actually the truth. You already are it. You can never lose it. It can never be broken. It can never die. Everything that you need to give your unique gift to the world is housed within you. This program is about letting go of all the false beliefs that have kept it hidden...about waking up to the truth and making it welcome.

Finding Your Music

Just like music on a radio station, your wealth and abundance is playing all the time. You are surrounded by it. But when you aren't tuned in to that frequency, you can't hear it. It is not manifesting in your physical experience. But when you "tune in," to the station, when you vibrate with it, suddenly, it is present right where you are. This class is about helping you develop practices and habits that will increase your ability to tune into that frequency on a regular basis, as naturally as breathing. In fact, we want to develop habits and ways of life that permanently establish us on that new station.

Plan for Success...

- The whole Universe is on your side but you have to be on your own side.
- You have to be committed to yourself so you don't take yourself out of the game.
- Notice what comes up. This work will scratch you. It is designed to get you unstuck. But you have to be willing to dive right into the middle of that threshold rather than turning and running from it.
- Engage in the Facebook group and on the calls. Ask questions. Get coaching. Get your healing scheduled. Connect with each other. The group is small so all of you can be accountability partners. If you are not taking advantage of all the help available, that is why you are not getting what you need to move forward.

How you do Money is how you do everything...

- What you're not getting is what you're not giving. This can be the most important self-development you ever do.
- Dealing with overwhelm- this is how we shut down and stop ourselves.
- Sometimes this might feel hard, but you can do hard. It's when you can't do anymore, but you keep going, that you grow! Example of the Bamboo tree.
- Create a learning plan. Failure to plan is a plan to fail. Set aside some amount of time everyday to practice this everyday. There is time if you make it a priority. Put it on your schedule.

MAKE THE COMMITMENT...

Making and keeping your promises to yourself is how you build your character. Your character, the etch of God on your soul, is what determines your destiny...not your circumstances. This isn't about "I'll try." It is about commitment. All of your dreams are waiting for you to be TRUE TO THEM.

Set this intention for the program:

I am going to get everything I need to succeed, and more than I can imagine out of this program, NO MATTER WHAT!!

Goddess Teachings ~ Money Teachings - LOST!

Money's Original Origin is Divine...

Early in human history, before Goddess worship was demonized...
 "...The sun and moon were not representatives of gods, but gods themselves. The lunar goddess and the sun god lived within the moon and the sun, not as separate entities, but as integrated spirits. Gold and silver metals were understood to be extensions of the spirits of the celestial divinities...Because of the sacred origin of gold and silver, these metals were initially used only in tribute to the gods." As time went on coins began to replace grain as a means of exchange. But "money, still wholly sacred, became the connecting bridge between the spiritual and the material world."

During this time, the world and material goods flourished. The belief of "money as the link between Heaven and Earth lasted well into the Roman period."

In 390 BC, the Gauls launched a siege against Rome. The story goes that a flock of Juno's sacred geese began to make a racket as the Gauls tried to sneak up on the temple of Capitoline Jupiter, warning the Romans and saving the day.

After the incident involving her geese, Juno was known as Juno Moneta or "Juno who warns", which eventually became "Juno who protects funds", due to the fact that her warning kept the coins safe. This aspect of Juno became so important to the Romans and she became so identified with protecting funds that a temple was built specifically for Juno Moneta in 344 BC. This temple became Rome's primary mint, where all coins were created and stored. Thus, Rome's currency, and the currency of the Western World at that time, were intimately tied to one of the three most important gods of Rome, Juno, the Queen of gods and men.

In ancient times, among the pagans, the idea of money and worship were embraced. Romans worshiped their goddess for the sake of money. The money flowed out from her temple and often had her likeness on the coins. They never gave it a second thought.

For almost a thousand years it was clear to the Romans and their subjects throughout the known world, Juno Moneta was all about the money.

Something to Ponder...

When the coins were about to be stolen from the temple, these folks weren't worried that their bank was about to be robbed. They weren't concerned for their material welfare. They were afraid that their connection to the Goddess was about to be taken. That tangible, physical evidence of their connection to the Divine was about to be usurped.

As long as that connection was stable—their life prospered, their material needs were met (not by the exchange of these coins), nature stayed in balance. They didn't need to hoard the coins or stockpile them. Rather they needed to be in right relationship with Who they represented. They were a vibrational reminder of that connection.

The degree of your wealth is measured by the degree to which you KNOW that the abundance of all creation is pouring through you to the world at all times.

The out-picturing...the demonstration in the physical, matters not. It is the degree to which YOU KNOW that you are the opening for it to flow through. From that perspective it is only yours to:

- Make it welcome (prime the pump);
- Point yourself in the direction where you want to pour forth your blessings upon the world; and
- Open the flow - remove the obstructions.
